THE WASHINGTON CRITIC, Washington, D. C.

Tuesday, May 12, 1885. AMUSEMENTS TO NIGHT. Albaugh's .- "Prince Methusalem."

Theatre Comique—Burlesque and variety. Dime Museum -- Leonzo Brothers.

Exenssions to the Capital. There are no more delightful mouths in any city on the face of the earth than the months of May and June in Washington ; and September and October are not far behind them in attractiveness. From now on until the first of July the National Capital is to be seen at its best because of its wealth of foliage and flowers and grassy lawns, and of the generally mild and equable temperature. The autumnal months are quite as advantageous in many respects, especially for outdoor travel and sight-seeing about the city and its sub-

These are the seasons of the year that should be utilized much more than they are by strangers who desire to visit Washington, and such would doubtless be the case, were our friends throughout the country given proper encouragement to come, and if the various railroad companies concentrating here were to offer inducements in the way of popular excursions at reduced rates.

There are thousands upon thousands of people who would avail themselves of such an opportunity, were the opportunity available, and there is every reason to believe that it would prove a profitable scheme to the railroads. All that is needed to inaugurate it is the arrangement of a reasonable schedule of fares and a wide advertisement of the fact, in which the press generally would, no doubt, cordially co-operate, and a large tide of spring and autumn travel could soon be turned in this direction.

It would be a good thing for the city, a good thing for the roads and a good thing for the people. Now, of all others, is the time, in advance of the heated midsummer term, to "do" the Capital comfortably and cheerfully, to voyage down the Potomac. to visit Mount Vernon, to make the grand tour of our historic and picturesque surroundings. Will not the railroads second THE CRITIC'S motion?

A New Book Well Boomed.

Mark Twain made the mistake of his life when he neglected to have a woodcut hewn out to illustrate his faux pas of weeping over the ice-house at Mount Vernon. He likewise disregarded a gigantic opportunity when he forgot to have au electrotype plate prepared to show that Adam's sarcophagus was bona-fide and entitled to public confidence.

When Victoria Regina published her mournful volume on "Life in the Highlands," it would have been a monster stroke of business if she had accompanied the prospectus with a strong indorsement from her Prime Minister.

If Sir Peter Lumsden or the Earl of Dufferin should write a book on "Four Stockades; or, How the Afghans Were Rattled," they would be considered nonenterprising, indeed, if they neglected to accompany it with the cordial affidavit of Mr. Gladstone that it was "a good thing."

There would be no rumors of wars to-day in Europe if Komaroff's little volume on "Two Facades; or, The Looting of the Sariks" had only gone out with a preface by the White Czar that he had read the advance sheets and found them worthy ofpublic credence.

President Cleveland's autograph electrotype letter commending Mr. Sanset Cox's work on "Three Decades" is a stroke of policy, however, that will be heard around the world. Mr. Cox is to be congratulated upon the boom which his new literary venture has thus received at the hands of a thoughtful and benignant administration. It was scarcely necessary, considering the established reputation of the new Minister to Turkey as a genial, graphic and cleverlygifted writer, but the send-off is an agreeable one at any rate. It will do to frame and keep in the family.

A Political Warm Wave.

The low barometer which has prevailed among certain Democratic statesmen since the 4th of March is being followed rapidly by high temperature and warmer weather. The cold-wave flag has been ordered down in Missouri, and the mean relative humidity in Illinois, Michigan and Indiana is evaporating in the sunlight of President Cleveland's better understood policy. The Administration has begun to "turn the rascals out."

The unseasonable storms which gathered in the Northwest last month have passed out to sea and are now mingled with the Gulf-stream of faith in the Administration. The local thermometric readings show a smaller average of precipitation, and a lovely summer is indicated alike in the Mississippi Valley and the South Atlantic States.

The probabilities are, therefore, that hereafter the political weather will be tair, with perhaps occasional showers and local rains next fall. But the people wouldn't appreciate the sunshine if the clouds did not now and then obscure the sun. And thus we confidently predict that as long a the Administration causes its beneficent action respecting the offices to permeate alike the New England States and the Ohio Valley, there will be plain sailing. glad skies and a temperature equal to the palmiest days of Acadia.

Business Men as Consuls.

At is evident from the conservatism which characterizes the action of the State Department that Secretary Bayard has determined to organize the Consular Service on a business basis. The recent law requiring reports from consulates at frequent intervals on leading topics of the times has aroused general interest in the system and will give great impetus to commercial faith in them reports, as the latter are found to be reliable and instructive.

It only remains for the Secretary to select his consuls with reference to their countries in such manner as will commend themselves to the people, the politicians and the statesmen of all parties. Our consular system should be made an elaborate and efficient instrument of trustworthy information of all kinds. Many of the reports already published are of value, notwithstanding the fact that in some cases they have a strong tineture of partisanship or political bias. But the system, as it is intended to be, will be free of this objectionable feature, and under proper guidance can be made of greater profit to the agricultural and commercial interests of the country than the combined work of all our high-salaried diplomatists. THE exports of Mexico have increased in three years from about $29,000,000 to nearly $47,000,000. This is one result of railway construction in that country. In facilitating transportation it has stimulated production. El Comercio del Valle, the Spanish-American paper, published at St. Louis, predicts that Mexico, "with peace and wisdom," will have a revenue of $500.-000,000 within the coming ten years. All that is needed is to tear down the tollgates along the Rio Grande, abolish all olious forms of commercial taxation and make free interchangeable markets with all the world.

THE policy of the Secretary of State in the Papama business has vindicated itself. and it was an exceedingly troublesome and delicate matter to deal with. Senor Recerra, the Colombian Minister, who is now in New York, said to a Tribune reporter yesterday: "I think the conduct of the United States Government has been right in every respect. While all the members of this Government deserve commendation, I have special motives for being gratified with the course of Mr. Bayard in the management of this affair."

THE great object of the new Catholic university to be established here was fully stated by Bishop Spalding in his discourse during the Plenary Council. It is intended to commence with faculties of philosophy, science and theology, adding others in time. with a view to the most thorough education possible of Catholic clergymen. Relative to the location of the university in Washington, the New York Times says the prelates have done a wise thing.

A JURY has been secured in the case of Cluverius, charged in the Richmond courts with having murdered Fannie Lillian Madison. The trial is destined to be a remarkable one, for it seems difficult to determine whether Miss Madison did not commit suicide, instead of being murdered. It is of local interest that a portion of the jury was secured in Alexandria.

THE question with the Maine delegation is whether the postmaster at Augusta should be named by Mr. Blaine and the two Republican Senators, or whether the Democratic State Central Committee and President Cleveland should have something to say about it. The odds thus far are in favor of the President.

THE more the affairs of the Agricultural Department are looked into, the more it becomes apparent that the time for a change of Administration had come. Dr. Loring was more of an esthete than an athlete in the matter of civil service reform.

THE Wisconsin man who swallowed a silver dollar the other day will probably worry through his trouble, but it is a very close call. Hereafter when he feels like taking a dollar or two for lunch he will select a nice, tender greenback.

THE case against Commissioner Sparks was dismissed in the Police Court to-day, Judge Snell very properly deciding that the majesty of administrative reform must
